A LITTLE ABOUT ME

I started building websites out of high school, back in 2007, to grow communities around my interests, whether it was anime, sports, gaming or anything of the sorts. I have since developed my skills by working for popular product companies like MetaLab, PasswordBox (now acquired by Intel Security) and web/mobile design agencies like 3magine.

This has significantly helped me elevate my skills as a professional and a team player.

Throughout the years, I've also kept up-to-date with the latest trends in web designs by being an active member on online design communities such as Dribbble, Behance, Forrst, etc. I am very fluent in the design of interfaces for any given form of website, mobile app (ios/android), social network, SaaS tools, themes (wordpress, tumblr, shopify), etc.

I am confident that my many years of experience, along with the drive and passion that I have shown for the graphic design field, will continue to make me improve my skills and deliver top notch projects.
